Eric M. Spada is a Senior Attorney in Houston Harbaugh's litigation practice, bringing over a decade of sophisticated trial and appellate experience to complex commercial disputes. Known for his strategic approach to high-stakes litigation and mastery of electronic discovery, Eric has successfully represented clients in multi-million dollar matters across diverse industries.

He recently represented an international heavy-duty electric vehicle manufacturer in a multi-million dollar tortious interference case, managing ESI protocols for a universe exceeding one million documents, ultimately securing a favorable settlement. His courtroom advocacy extends to environmental litigation, including trying an appeal before Pennsylvania's Commonwealth Court on novel constitutional grounds.

Throughout his career, Eric has distinguished himself in high-value commercial litigation. He has successfully represented clients in disputes from the pleadings stage through trial and then appeal. He takes particular pride in advising clients with a common sense, business-first approach.
